Harold Cazneaux (30 March 1878 – 19 June 1953) was an Australian pictorialist photographer; a pioneer whose style had an indelible impact on the development of Australian photographic history. In 1916, he was a founder of the Pictorialist Sydney Camera Circle. As a regular participator in national and international exhibitions, Cazneaux was unfaltering in his desire to contribute to the discussion about the photography of his times. He created some of the most memorable images of the early twentieth century.

Claire

I received the APS Bulletin today and was interested in the Map card of Australia. I have included scans of two that I have that are earlier than the illustrated one. They are 1910/1911 but with a population number 500,000 less than the numbers shown on the illustrated card. It is still a guess as to the date of your Robinson card but it would have to be post WW1, I would have thought.

Also, the page of Avant cards is interesting to me as there are a number of illustrated card that I do not have. I am in the process of listing all of the Avant cards as a register. So far I am up to 11,500. Eventually I will create a web site called Freecard Register and make them available so anyone can access it. Whether anyone will want to or not is probably a mute point.

Kind Regards

David Johnson

Adelaide Town Hall Postcard c 1900

By Bronie Young Watts

I recently picked up a 1900 German made Adelaide Town Hall postcard dated 14th May 1900 from a series produced for the German Market to advertise and promote South Australia.

It features Adelaide Town Hall and Airdrives Prince Alfred Hotel, c1890 from original album print (gloss plate) by sweet, 3 x 7 inches.

Adelaide Town Hall is a landmark building in King William Street, Adelaide, South Australia. The structure was designed by Edmund Wright and Edward Woods with construction commencing in 1863 and completed in 1868.

The Tower is named after Prince Albert and the Clock was installed in 1935. George Airdrives died on 12th December 1879 at his residence Prince Alfred Hotel, King William Street in his 63rd year.

Looking for your knowledge of Waterfalls

Michael Vort-Ronald, the prolific author on all matters relating to Australian Banknotes, is keen to identify the precise location of this waterfall. The picture comes from an image captioned "Waterfall, Upper Yarra" and Mick believes the picture probably exists on a picture postcard. If any readers have this view on a card, or can tell us where the waterfall is, or was, could they please contact the editor.

Cheers

Martin Walker
